APRIL 2017

Its always a bit awkward to write an Easter article while still in the midst of Lent, in the same way its difficult to write my Easter sermons while spiritually engaged in Holy Week. That which is on either side of the cross stands in tension with the other side, yet you cannot truly experience one without the other. Then again, that is the nature of our faith journey, to ask questions and wrestle with possibilities, only to be led to a new level of understanding and a renewed sense of belief.

As the ashes were imposed on our foreheads, we were reminded that it was from dust we were formed and to dust we will return. That reality grounds us in our humanity, reminding us of who and how we are. And throughout the Lenten season we reflect on those things around us and within us that keep us from being open to the fullness of life God offers us. Cleaning our spiritual house is hard work. It requires us to come to terms with who we are, to sort through the clutter that distracts us from what is of lasting value, to let go of what weighs us down, and to claim the gift of freedom Christ offers us. We are quick to glance into the mirror to make sure there is no broccoli in our teeth, but God calls us to examine ourselves in the deepest of ways—considering the truth of how we've been, the purity of our motives, and the readiness of our hearts to give ourselves completely in faith.

A few months ago, there was a series of ads on television of a professional athlete saying, "It took me years of dedicated sacrifice and practice, hours of painful exertion on the field to get this jersey." Then up walks a kid who says, "Yea, but my mom bought me the same jersey for $29.99 at the Pro Sports Shop." Now, which jersey has true integrity and value? Paul writes, "For if we have been united with Christ in a death like his, we will certainly be united with him in a resurrection like his." (Romans 6:5) No pains, no gain. No sacrifice, no glory.

There are no short cuts on the way to the cross. Jesus claimed no divine privilege to exempt him from the price to be paid for our sin. As Paul says, "He emptied himself (completely)...humbled himself...and became obedient unto death on a cross...therefore God has highly exalted him." (Philippians 2) Our call is to be crucified with Christ, to the point that it is no longer we who live, but Christ who lives in us. It is only in our complete surrender to him that we are set free to become who he created—and recreated us to be.

For that purpose, Holy Week is such an important part of the journey. Too often folks go from the Hosannas of Palm Sunday directly to the Alleluias of Easter Day and then wonder why it all seems like a hollow victory. I would challenge you to be intentional in your devotion and to walk as closely as you can with Jesus into darkness of the valley. With him we experience the rejection, the betrayal and denial of others, the sense of abandonment, the challenge of trusting God to be true to his promise. As we come to the cross we seek to understand what it is to die to ourselves, to let go of every earthly security and to put it all in God's care. We wrestle with a sense of being forsaken. (Psalm 22) We try to imagine the darkness of the grave, of being in that place where God is not. And while we can never experience anything near what Jesus experienced, we open ourselves to the depths with the hope of exaltation in the power and joy of resurrection.

As with any relationship—we only receive of it to the point that we are invested in it. On Wednesday of Holy Week we will gather at noon at Sts. Simon & Jude to hear of Jesus in the garden. On Thursday evening we will gather in our Fellowship Hall to celebrate the Passover Meal, the Seder, remembering how God has redeemed his people, and in our celebration of communion, how God has saved us personally. On Friday evening we gather at Abundant Grace Church to focus on the cross on the hill called Golgotha. And then on Saturday, in our private devotion, we ponder the grave, Jesus' descent into Hell, the lack of life without God's abiding presence. And then, from the darkness the light breaks forth and we rejoice in the wonderful news that Christ is risen and we are raised with him. It is only having known the darkness that we can know the sweet release.....

In Christ's love,

Pastor Jim

Graduates

Parents of graduates, our church tradition has been to recognize the efforts and accomplishments of our children and young adults, especially at graduation time. But it is really hard to keep up with who’s graduating from what school and what their future plans are going to be. Please notify the office or see Kim McKinney about your child’s pending graduation from high school or college so that we may show your son or daughter how much we care. Graduate recognition will be Sunday, June 4th during the morning worship service at 10:00 a.m. If your graduate has a talent they would like to share during the recognition service such as singing, playing an instrument, speaking, etc., please let Kim or the office know.

Christian Camping Opportunities

For many years four presbyteries (Kiskiminetas, Beaver-Butler, Shenango, and Lake Erie) have shared in ministry through two church camps, West Minster Highlands in Emlenton, PA and Camp Lambec on the shore of Lake Erie. Because of low attendance at the Highlands it is not financial feasible to open the camp in 2017. Because of water sanitation issues, Camp Lambec is not able to open for the season. Should your children be interested in Christian camping, there are two camps located fairly close, Pine Springs Camp in Jennerstown, PA is administered by Washington and Redstone Presbyteries and Camp Crestfield is affiliated with Pittsburgh Presbytery. For more information, you can contact Pastor Monroe or visit the camps websites: www.crestfieldcc.org and www.pinesprings.org.

Compassion News

Dear Friends,
Greetings to you in the name of Jesus. Wishing you a happy New Year. We are now sowing sorghum. How are you doing? My family and I are doing well. Thank you for the letter and the nice picture that you have sent to me. I end up wishing you peace from God!

Your child,
Hagenimana Vestine

About the speakers:

On a Sunday morning in 1997 Julie Kemp, her husband, Andy and their 8 year old son, Landon were driving home from church, when an ambulance broadsided their car. Andy died instantly. Rescuers stabilized Julie but did not initially realize there was a third passenger in the car. Landon died at the scene but was brought back to life. As an ambulance rushed him to Carolinas Medical Center, Landon slipped away again and was, again, revived. At the hospital, he was pronounced dead, but came back again. After two weeks in a coma, Landon opened his eyes. To everyone’s amazement he had no brain damage. But in the midst of her joy, Julie had to tell Landon that his dad had died in the accident. Julie says, “I said, Landon, do you know where your dad is? And he told me, ‘Yes, I know where he’s at. I saw him in heaven.’” Years have passed since the accident but Landon still clearly remembers his amazing experiences in Heaven. Julie and Landon faced many struggles in recovering from the accident, but continued to share their story. Landon says Jesus sent him back with instructions to “tell others about Jesus,” and that’s what he does.

Mission Moment—A church with no children steps out in faith and receives an incredible gift

In many ways, the story of our little church is very much like the story of your church, if your church is like over half of all PC(USA) congregations, with fewer than 100 members. And I have walked through the halls of our building much as you have walked through the halls of yours, listening to church members telling stories of “better days,” of youth groups, Sunday school, Christmas pageants and the like.

Yes, I walked through those empty halls, peering into empty classrooms full of leftover children’s books and musty educational toys. As I walked, I prayed, “Lord, this is just not right. Please bring children back to this church. Please fill these empty rooms once again.”

During that time, we—all 25 members of St. Paul’s Presbyterian Church—began to pray for children. Drawn to Genesis 15:5, we claimed God’s promise to Abraham, “Count the stars”:

He brought him outside and said, “Look toward heaven and count the stars, if you are able to count them.” Then he said to him, “So shall your descendants be.”

As we prayed, we began to look with fresh eyes around our own community, looking for children, and discovered that both the Boys and Girls Club and Hemingway Elementary School were our neighbors, within a stone’s throw. We approached them and began to plan together for our first community Vacation Bible School. We worked and watched as God opened doors and provided all that we needed, from community volunteers, to supplies, to reduced prices on snacks, all which culminated in three glorious days of holy chaos with 70 children. At the end of that first year, we all agreed that this was the most thrilling mission trip we had ever been a part of. The best part is that we got to sleep in our own beds at night.

While we exhaled in deep thanks for this annual gift of children, God’s promise continued to materialize when the director of a participating private school asked us to mentor her children who attend online classes with little personal interaction. This request gifted us with 20 middle and high school youth who now come to us every Wednesday afternoon for Bible study and recreation. The empty classrooms are now filled with students who sink comfortably into sofas and chairs, and enjoy a game of pool or ping-pong.

Today we are planning our fourth VBS, wondering if our numbers will exceed the 160 children that came last year. Each year has been a walk of faith for our little church, and each year God has provided abundantly for our needs and added to our partners, which are now two schools, five churches and our own youth group of volunteers. One of our partnering churches approaches this VBS week as a mission trip, driving 40 miles each day and bringing their adult and youth volunteers, their children and their entire VBS budget!

A night sky full of stars, answers to prayer, sticky fingers, happy smiles and the laughter of children—these are the gifts of God for the people of God. Thanks be to God!
